

Environmentalists For Nuclear Energy™

Introduction to EFN

EFN-USA (Environmentalists For Nuclear Energy™, Inc.) is a not-for-profit organization incorporated in the State of Delaware which aims at: providing complete and straightforward information about energy and the environment; making known the advantages of nuclear energy, and especially the environmental advantages; bringing together persons favoring the intelligent use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes with respect for the environment and with good management of nuclear waste.

EFN-USA is an independent organization which works in close cooperation with similar organizations in other regions of the world (such as EFN-Europe). It encourages the creation of similar organizations in other countries, to develop an international network of Environmentalists For Nuclear Energy (EFN).

EFN unites people who are concerned about the future of our planet and want to keep it clean and to protect nature, thanks to the use of clean, safe and renewable energies.

History of EFN

EFN started growing in 1996 around Bruno Comby author of the book "Environmentalists For Nuclear Energy". EFN grew rapidly and in 2003, some American citizens, scientists and environmentalists decided to create EFN-USA, and inform the American public.

EFN currently gathers over 9.200 members, supporters, and local correspondents in many American States and in more than 60 countries around the world, on five continents, to promote clean and safe applications of nuclear energy, for a better and cleaner planet.

The point of view of EFN

EFN considers that environmental opposition to nuclear energy is a major mistake. If well managed, nuclear energy is a very clean energy, does not reject polluting gases in the atmosphere, uses very few construction materials (per kWh) compared to solar and wind energy, produces very little waste (almost totally confined), is very safe, and does not contribute to the greenhouse effect (no carbon dioxide). True environmentalists are therefore in favor of nuclear energy.

EFN works at informing the public of the environmental benefits of nuclear energy, the cleanest energy resource massively available.

More efficient uses of energy, renewable energies, and self sustainable lifestyles should be promoted, as well as existing clean nuclear technology and future types of nuclear reactors.
